BEING AN

ALMANACK

For the Year of Grace, 1686.

Wherein is contained both the Engliſh & Forreign Account, the Motions of the Planets [illegible] with the Luminaries, Conjunctions, Aſpects, Eclipſes, and ſtanding, ſouthing, and ſetting of the ſeven [illegible] paſſeth by, or is with the [illegible] and ſetting, and the time of High-Water at the City of [illegible]

With Chronologies, and [illegible] other Notes, Rules, and Tables, very [illegible] all which is accomodated to the [illegible]

To the Reader.

I Thought good to insert this short Epistle, that you might understand the cause why I thus ventured to publish this Ephemeris or Almanack, which is truly thus; I having journied in and through several places, not only in this Province, but likewise in Maryland, and else where, and the People generally complaining, that they scarcely knew how the Time passed, nor that they hardly knew the day of Rest, or Lords Day, when it was, for want of a Diary, or Day-Book, which we call, an Almanack. And on the other side, having in my Travels met with Ingenious Persons, that have been Lovers of the Mathematical Arts, some of which have wanted an Ephemeris to make some Practice thereon: I say, hearing this general Complaint from such abundance of Inhabitants, which are here, I was really troubled, and did design, according to that small Knowledge that I had, to please these my Country men with that which they wanted, although it be not compleated in that Method, which I did intend it should be. Nevertheless I have reduced the Sun and Moons places, according to their mean Motions, to this Meridian, which is five hours West from the City of London: For the other Planets, I have taken them by whole Degrees, from the Ephemerides of that Ingenious and Skilful Artist, Mr. John Gadbury: from whence the Fundamental is derived: The Lunar Aspects I have reduced to the hour that they happen here, as before. As to the Moons rising and setting, I have used the Method of Mr. Vincent Wing formerly in his Almanack, that is, the Moons rising from Full to New, and her setting from New to Full, according to her own place in the Ecliptick; for what soever it is to shew you the time of her rising and setting in the day time when you cannot see it. In her Southing, I have something rectified her Latitude, and accordingly I have framed a Table fitting to that Purpose: that I have made use of here. As to the Moons motion by the fixed Stars, &c. If [illegible] you have it in that [illegible] you may be [illegible]

Some Irregularities, there be in this Diary, which I deſire you to paſs by this year; for being lately come hither, my Materials were Miſ placed, and out of order, whereupon I was forced to uſe Figures & Letters of various ſizes, but underſtanding the want of ſomething of this nature, and being importuned thereto, I ventured to make publick this, deſiring you to accept thereof, and by the next, (as I find encouragement) ſhall endeavour to have things compleat. And for the eaſe of Clarks, Scriviners, &c. I propoſe to print blank Bills, Bonds, Letters of Attourney, Indentures, Warrants, &c. and what elſe preſents it ſelf, wherein I ſhall be ready to ſerve you; and remain your Friend,*
